

Contents

---

|  |      |
|--|------|
| Preface   | v    |
| Glossary  | vii  |
| About the authors                                   | ix   |
| Acknowledgements                                    | x    |
| Thought for the book                                | xii  |
| First aid for seizures                              | xiii |
| Chapter 1 Definition and epidemiology of epilepsy   | 1    |
| Chapter 2 Aetiology and pathophysiology of epilepsy | 7    |
| Chapter 3 General history taking                    | 19   |
| Chapter 4 Differential diagnosis of epilepsy        | 25   |
| Chapter 5 Classification of epilepsy                | 35   |
| Chapter 6 Seizure types                             | 41   |
| Chapter 7 Diagnosis of epilepsy                     | 51   |

|                   |  |            |
|-------------------|--|------------|
| Chapter 8  | Anti-epileptic drugs for epilepsy   | 69  |
| Chapter 9  | Future developments in the treatment of epilepsy                                  | 89  |
| Chapter 10 | When things go well -monotherapy and withdrawal                              | 99  |
| Chapter 11 | When things are not going well -polypharmacy, surgery and status epilepticus | 107 |
| Chapter 12 | Epilepsy at extremes of age   | 127 |
| Chapter 13 | Specific situations   | 139 |
| Chapter 14 | Common questions  | 159 |